President of U.S. Pledges Abolition of International Gangsterism by Allied Arms

"That Japs never surrender, their branding order issued in just a week."

Mr. Roosevelt devoted much of his address of about 15 minutes to Canada and her participation in the war, praising the manner in which Canadians and Americans have fought "shoulder to shoulder" just as they worked and played together in peace.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King in introducing the chief executive hailed him as "undoubted champion of the rights of free men and a mighty leader of the forces of freedom in a free world."

FORECASTS VICTORIES

Mr. King foretold a substantial advance toward complete victory as a result of the Quebec conference.

Avoiding any detailed description of advance plans for the war, the American president devoted himself largely to the broad moral principles of the four freedoms and the Atlantic charter. He promised unanimous action in clearing the world of savage outlaws and keeping "under heel forever" would achieve "freedom from fear of violence."

Professing "everlasting" anger at those who attack the Atlantic Charter and the Four Freedoms, Mr. Roosevelt said "some critics—if they had lived a century and a half ago—would have attacked the Declaration of Independence, and before that, the Magna Carta."

"And if they had lived several thousand years ago they would have derided Moses when he came from the mountain with the Ten Commandments."

CITIES CANADIAN UNITY

Mr. Roosevelt concluded his speech with a few words in French, praising Canada's nation founded on a union of two great races. Mr. Roosevelt said "the harmony of their equal partnership is an example to all mankind—an example everywhere in the world."

Speaker J. Allison Glen of the House of Commons and Speaker Thomas Venn of the Senate responded with brief addresses after the president.

King greeted Roosevelt to Ottawa, leaving Quebec last yesterday. The president was accompanied on his trip to the capital by Harry H. Hopkins, his principal adviser. Rear Admiral William Brown, naval surgeon Rear Admiral R. C. McIntire, surgeon general of the navy and his personal physician, and Admiral D. Leahy, his chief of staff.

Churchill and the American president said goodbye last night for the present—they left their conference in the not too distant future at the Citadel where they worked together for eight days. Churchill will fly up Saturday when he will make a radio speech.

Ottawa was turned out in carnival

after. The city was a riot of red, white and blue. Armed soldiers had been sent to guard the president's motorcade. Mr. Roosevelt addressed thousands of windows. A half-million people had been assembled in the working people to see the U.S. President. The president was the biggest public display in the history. He had participated since the war began.

The text of President Roosevelt's address.

Your Excellency, members of the Empire, my good friends and neighbors of the Dominion of Canada.

"It was exactly five years ago last Wednesday I came to Canada to receive the high honor of a degree at Queen's University. On that occasion I was very before the invasion of Poland, three years ago, and I said: 'I am here to see the future of this world.'"

"We in the Americas are no longer a far away continent, to which the affairs of controversy beyond the sea could bring no interest or no harm. Instead, in the Americas have become a consideration to every propaganda office and in every general staff book 'under heel forever' would achieve 'freedom from fear of violence'."

"We did not choose this war, and we do not wish it. But we have chosen it, and we will win it."

DIDN'T CHOOSE WAR

"We did not choose this war, and we do not wish it. But we have chosen it, and we will win it."

"We did not choose this war, and we do not wish it. But we have chosen it, and we will win it."

"We did not choose this war, and we do not wish it. But we have chosen it, and we will win it."

"We did not choose this war, and we do not wish it. But we have chosen it, and we will win it."

CONSTRUCTIVE TALKS

"We have been constructive of our common purposes in this war, of our determination to achieve victory in the shortest possible time, and of our essential common link to our great and brave fighting Allies."

"And we have arrived harmoniously at certain definite conclusions. Of course, I am not at all sure that we are making these conclusions. But, in due time, we shall communicate the secret information of the Quebec conference to Germany, Italy and Japan. We shall communicate this information to our enemies in the only language their twisted minds can understand."

MAKING LESSON SURE

"We have been constructive of our common purposes in this war, of our determination to achieve victory in the shortest possible time, and of our essential common link to our great and brave fighting Allies."

"And we have arrived harmoniously at certain definite conclusions. Of course, I am not at all sure that we are making these conclusions. But, in due time, we shall communicate the secret information of the Quebec conference to Germany, Italy and Japan. We shall communicate this information to our enemies in the only language their twisted minds can understand."

NEW BETTER DAYS

"There is a longing in the air, a longing to go back to the old days, the old days when we had no reservations as to how good the old days were. I would rather believe that we can achieve new and better days than we can achieve the old days."

"Absolute victory in this war will give greater opportunities to us, because the war is proving that concerted action can accomplish things. Surely, we can make strides toward a greater freedom from want than the world has ever enjoyed. Surely, by unanimous action in driving out the outlaws and keeping peace, we can achieve a new and better day."

"We are not waiting until the fall to do this important job—they are acting now!"

HEATING SYSTEMS MUST BE EFFICIENT: HOMES SHOULD BE ADEQUATELY INSULATED.

Here are some jobs you should start doing NOW!

- 1 Have your entire heating system inspected. Order necessary repairs.
- 2 Have your furnace thoroughly cleaned and serviced by a competent man. Insulate furnace and pipes where necessary.
- 3 Be sure that you have sufficient storm windows and that all windows and doors are tightly. Have cracks in walls repaired. Weatherstrip wherever it is necessary. Consider seriously the insulation of ceiling and walls.

Many homes waste as much as 60% of their fuel through inefficient heating equipment, inadequate insulation and other heat losses.

Winter is just around the corner. Start preparing your home NOW!

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 25.—Juste Fontaine looks like a sleek young greyhound, despite his broad shoulders. But this new feline star, who was born in a white patch of ring light at Shibe Park Monday night, packs a "black buster" in each fist.

Well-Known Rink Owner in Belgium Shot by Germans

TORONTO, Aug. 25.—(CP)—Marcel Van Schelle, well-known Canadian hockey players who have found Europe as the owner of rinks in Brussels and Antwerp, has been shot by the Germans according to word reaching George Braden, Toronto sports goods manufacturer with whose firm Van Schelle was connected.

The Belgian was one of 10 hit, ages executed at Brussels in reprisal for the murder of several German soldiers.

Van Schelle, born in Belgium, went in the United States after the first Great War and developed an outstanding ability, excelling in swimming. Returning to Belgium, in 1921 Van Schelle opened the "Pole Nord," a professional rink in the heart of Brussels. By 1936 he had expanded in Antwerp, where he built the "Sportpaleis," seating 15,000.

In 1938, just before war broke out, Van Schelle was ready to introduce a Canadian game of lacrosse to Belgium and had ordered a supply of sticks from a Cornwall, Ont., firm.

A REAL LOSS TO INTERNATIONAL HOCKEY

OTTAWA, Aug. 25.—(CP)—Dr. W. Harold H. Edmundson, president of the International Ice Hockey Association, said here Tuesday the death of Marcel Van Schelle, one of the best players in the world, was a real loss to international hockey.

In a statement to the Canadian Press, Dr. H. Edmundson said: "He was a fine sport and gentleman and a Canadian player who had won Europe's highest hockey honors. He was a fine player and gentleman and a Canadian player who had won Europe's highest hockey honors. He was a fine player and gentleman and a Canadian player who had won Europe's highest hockey honors."

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Philadelphia Athletics tied the all-time American League record of 20 consecutive defeats last night when Luman Harris "blow" a ninth-inning lead to lose a twilight game to Chicago White Sox, 6-5, but they came back with an eight-run third inning to end the string in the night half of an American League double-header, 8-1.

The losing record was set by the 1916 Sox and equalled by the 1916 A's.

Another record was almost touched when Kugel handled 20 batters at first base for the Sox in the second game. It was two short of the record set by Tom Jones of St. Louis, who, May 11, 1906, and led by Ray Chase of New York Yankees four months later.

Tough Canadian Soldiers of Veterans Guard Defend Empire Outpost on Bahamas Warriors of Last War Keep Fit on Vacation Isle, Prepared for Emergencies

Inspection occurs in balmy morning air 'neath palm trees. Ex-soldiers' Veterans guard protects vital non-combat zones, releases active army regiments.

Changing the guard. These men, though veterans of the last war, are lean, tough and fit. They enjoy same rate of pay, rank and promotion as active army.

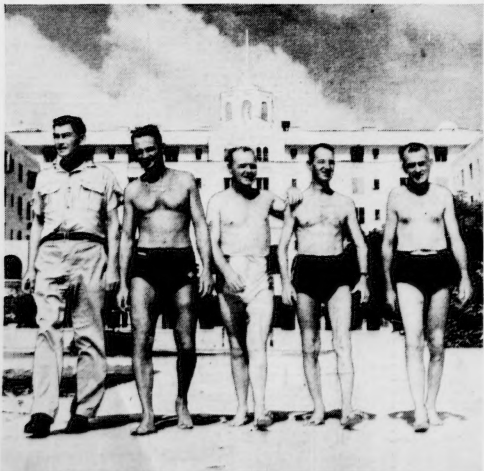

Privates E. E. Wilkie, La Have, N.S., and W. H. Jackson of Montreal go through mortar practice, part of their daily duties in the defense of the Bahamas.

Col. A. W. De Wolf of Halifax (at desk) is the officer in command of Canadian Veterans Guard and the Bahamian Forces on these Atlantic Isles.

The vets are ready for any attack. Every day they have gas mask drill, gunnery and mortar practice and defensive manoeuvres as part of their duties.

Sgt. G. E. Spencer, Edmonton; Pte. A. G. Fraser, Qualicum Beach, Vancouver Island; Corp. G. Breme, Listowel, Ont.; Pte. A. J. White, Timmins, Ont. and Corp. F. M. Middleton, Nanaimo, leave headquarters, Royal Montague Hotel, for swim.

Successful European offensive increases need for Veterans Guard to protect Empire outposts not in battle zones. Pte. W. Bell, Vancouver, aims mortar.

Corporal I. L. Parker of Shubenacadie, N.S., has nine children of his own. He gets a little homesick for them sometimes, and can't resist playing with the tots who gather on Bahamas beaches to admire Canadian soldiers.

CHAPTER IX

THE murder of Randolph Atherton left things in a worse mess than before, or so it seemed to Pat, as she sat at the window of her living room, idly watching passers-by. Her action, now nearly hushed, by Dr. Meade, gave her an occasional twinge that reminded her of the scolding expression in the family physician's eyes as he crossed her foot.

"Young lady," he had growled at last, "you certainly punished yourself. You stay off that foot for three days. Understand?"

Pat stretched luxuriantly and settled back in her chair, but her thoughts kept straying back to the subject of Randolph Atherton. Who had killed her father? What was the connection between the two?

"How are you, Pat?" she asked as she seated herself by the fire. "Dave said you were pretty upset last night."

"I was. Dr. Meade found my ankle, then made me drink some vile tasting stuff to settle my nerves." She made a very face. "It worked, though. I sleep like a baby."

Elmer smiled. She opened her purse and took out a folded piece of paper.

"Here," she handed it to Pat. "Dave sent you a note. I told him I was stopping by on my way home."

A quick thump leaped through Pat. She unfolded the paper.

"Hi, chicken," he had scrawled. "How does it feel to be a lady of leisure? May I come over tonight? Just tell Elmer the verdict. Dave."

She gave the note to the other girl, who grinned impudently when she read it.

"Shall I tell him you said 'yes' after long and serious thought?" Elmer chuckled, snatched the note from her teasing blue eyes. "Oh, you are blushing. Why, Pat?"

Blair started to say something. "Just a sec, now, don't go jumping at conclusions. He was very much alive when I saw him."

He did, incidentally, in the same slow, aloof manner.

"Atherton was in his car, driving too fast for any man. He didn't even glance at his truck when we met."

The policeman rolled the explanation over in his mind.

"Did you see Max Cleveland following him?" he asked. "The girl in the blue coat?"

"No, I didn't. I wasn't going to town. I took the detour over to Hatterburg."

Blair dismissed him, but he was far from satisfied. Had he imagined it, or had George Rand hesitated just a split second before he denied seeing Pat Cleveland?

McCoys Health Service

In searching for relief from constipation, it is well to consider the individual rather than the symptom. Almost any cases of this trouble may be brought on by entirely different causes. For example, in one case the cause may be prostatic, while in another case it may be incurable. The treatment of the two cases would of course, be different.

Some of the principal causes of constipation might be listed in this order:

1. A weakness of the contractile muscles of the intestine which push the contents onward.
2. An insufficient amount of roughage or bulk in the diet.
3. Disregarding the normal impulse, because of increased laziness.
4. The habitual use of laxatives.
5. Kinks, adhesions, or prolapses of the intestine.
6. Spastic colitis.

Blair, however, with his knowledge of the causes of constipation, which are laxative and which are constipating. Strictly speaking, no food can be constipating in either case, although some foods are almost entirely absorbed and leave little residue. In a sense, these could be called constipating.

Other foods contain a large amount of bulk and these might be laxative; however, the laxative effect of these foods might induce even further irritation when the irritant condition of the colon. For this reason, you will understand why it is so important to receive a correct diagnosis before starting treatment for constipation.

Whenever a patient desires some means of relieving the constipated state in a temporary way, I suggest the use of the enema. The enema is generally misapplied more than a laxative as it does not irritate the colon although it serves to bring about almost immediate relief.

When you are told that the constipation is the result of a relaxed and flabby state of the colon you will find it difficult to believe. Large amounts of whole fruits and nut-starchy vegetables, together with abdominal exercises, will be productive of relief which will be permanent. Those in this class will find valuable information in my articles called "Stuffing for Constipation," "Keep the Abdominal Muscles Developed," and "The Lying Down Exercises."

If you notice that the constipation increases after nervous strain or you notice that the taking of raw salads or fruit skins produces irritation, then the information given in my article "The Spastic or Irritable Colon" and in the article on "Bulk-Increasers and Relaxants" should be of interest.

Any of the above articles may be obtained by writing to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing only one large, self-addressed envelope, and adding a stamp for each article desired.

Fortunately, the average case of constipation will yield when the right treatment is started for it. I do not hesitate to say that many of those who troubled with the symptom could adopt a method which would bring lasting relief in from thirty to sixty days. The average case usually require specific treatment prescribed after examination.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address: McCoys Health Service, McCoys Building, 1351 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.
